

HAMILTON TIGERS AND SENIORS PUT UP FAIR CONTEST

O.R.F.U. Team Were Out-Played And Lost To McGill 22-2

TIGERS COLORFUL

St. Germain and Cameron
Entertained Until Half
Time

(By D. A. L. MacDonald).

Doug McGregor's Hamilton O. R. F. U. team supplied the opposition and the McGill seniors supplied the entertainment up at the stadium on Saturday when the season ticket holders, the rooters and a few hundred others saw McGill win 22 to 2. It was a good afternoon for those who like to see the home team go out in front and stay there with a safe lead. Had it not been for the bitter wind that set teeth chattering and knees chattering, it is quite probable that everyone would have spent a very comfortable afternoon.

The McGill team were very versatile in their entertainment. They scored three touches, converted one of them, kicked a drop and three rouges for a total of 22 while Tigers responded with two rouges. In the actual play they did other things calculated to keep the crowd entertained. Cameron and St. Germain, for instance, engaged in a basketball game while they were on in the first half and threw the ball around in a manner that highly pleased the crowd, combining for forty and fifty yard runs after kicks and on end runs. The rest of the team made yards from time to time and prevented Tigers from doing the same often and the band played at half time.

Tigers were also colorful. Their stripes caught the fancy of the crowd when they trotted out on the field and after the game started, Peters kept things lively by breaking around the end for big gains besides turning in a good kicking game. He got erratic after half time but in that part of the game his protection was none too good and half the snaps were over his head. He was one of the outstanding men on the field.

McGill went in without Mickles, Curly Taylor and Gordie Hughes. Jack Little, fresh from stroking McGill to a victory in the intercollegiate boat race went in again with St. Germain and Cameron on the half line, but before half time these last two called it a day, and Simpson and Manley performed for the rest of the game. Davis was another of the youngsters who got plenty of work and like the others showed up extremely well. "Lightning" Lashley was at quarter with the signals and there were no complaints there either.

McGill kicked off against the wind and after the play settled down, got the ball on Tigers' 40 yard line. Here they started an offensive which by a judicious use of straight bucks and end runs brought them up to the three yard line on the second down. Here, Lashley elected to kick an onside, probably just to show that last Saturday's hoof was no flash in the pan, and the net result was the same as last Saturday — five points. Millen figured prominently by catching the ball and Lashley burst forth with the convert.

The McGill halves ran the kick-off back some 45 yards and then later getting the ball on their 40 yard line, the red and white bucked it up to Tigers' 20. On the third down, St. Germain kicked for a rouge and McGill's seventh point. Tigers' meanwhile, had the ball in their possession but four times since the game began.

Tigers, however, just before the quarter ended threatened to score, kicking to the one yard line but St. Germain and Cameron by virtue of two fine runs, one for 20 and the other for 50 brought the ball up to Tigers' 50 yard line. This last run was the best of the game until Lashley heaved a forward pass to lose the ball. Tigers' kicked and Joe Cameron returned, the ball going to the dead line for a point.

Hamilton fumbled as soon as they started on their 25 yard line and Littlefield got the ball for McGill. Cameron made 20 yards around the end but the next two failed. On the third play, however, Joe found an aperture on a short quick buck and McGill were another five point to the good. Joe and Ralph then called it a day and departed for the field house while Simpson and Manley took their places. Tigers' secured the ball on the kick-off by a McGill interference and

STUDENTS' SOCIETY MEETS WEDNESDAY

Lectures are Cancelled From 11 to One O'clock

PRESENT STATEMENTS

Undergraduates Will Discuss
Financial Reports Now
Being Published

All lectures in the University are cancelled this Wednesday between the hours of 11 and one o'clock to enable undergraduates to attend the semi-annual meeting of the Students' Society. The meeting will take place in the ball room of the Union.

The principal item of business will be the presentation of the financial statements now appearing in the Daily. The meeting is designed chiefly to give students an opportunity to offer criticism or suggestions regarding these statements.

According to the latest available information there is no other business on the agenda. There are no motions, as the constitution of the Students' Society requires a two week's notice before the presentation of a motion, whether for amendment of the constitution or otherwise. G. H. Fletcher, Secretary-treasurer of the Council reports that no such notices have been received.

In connection with the forthcoming meeting it was pointed out that all students paying the universal fee are members of the society, and as such have a right to address the meeting on any subject under discussion.

The chair at Wednesday's meeting will be taken by Robert B. Bell, recently elected president of the McGill Union, and vice-president of the Students' Executive Council. Errol C. Amaron, president of the Council, will be unable to attend as he is a member of the University Soccer Team, which at that time will be making a tour of the New England States.

LECTURE BY ROBERT HALL

First of Series Today at Strathcona Hall

Mr. Robert Hall, graduate of McGill University and for the past two years a student at Oxford, England, will begin his series of lectures in Strathcona Hall this afternoon at four o'clock. This series is for the benefit of all women students, and will be given every two weeks from now until Christmas. Mr. Hall's subject "Jesus the Lord of Life," is expected to give ample opportunity for discussion during the half hour allowed for this purpose at the end of his 30-minute talk.

Twenty women students have already expressed their desire to join this group. It is hoped that all those who have taken an active part in the S.C.A. in the past will attend, and a welcome is extended to all newcomers and First Year women students.

REJOINS STAFF

The managing board of the Daily announces with pleasure the appointment of John Rowland Frith to the board of Associate Editors. Frith, who spent three years on the Daily staff, resigned at the end of last session, but has since returned, and is to be found at the night editor's desk on Sunday, after 7.

Frith is also manager of the senior basketball team.

WEEK-END IN OTTAWA

Sir Arthur and Lady Currie spent the week-end in Ottawa, visiting their son.

ERECTION OF DORMITORIES BEFORE HOUSE

First Session Of Mock Parliament
Tonight

IN UNION

Humphrey and Webster
Leaders of Opposing Political Parties

With John Humphrey leading the party in power, and Gordon Webster at the head of the Opposition, the opening meeting of McGill's Mock Parliament is being held tonight in the ball room of the Union. The Speech from the Throne will be delivered by Errol Amaron who is the Governor-General while Hon. Huggesson is again the speaker of the House.

The Dormitory Bill, providing for the erection of dormitories at McGill will be before the House, and promises to cause considerable discussion. It is understood that the present government will intimate, through the Speech from the Throne, some changes in the tariff and the introduction of legislation to provide for an embargo on the export of certain raw materials such as pulp-wood, pulp and hydro-electric power. It is also understood that the government is in favour of curbing the importation of great number of foreign moving-picture films into the Dominion, and it is expected to bring in legislation to this effect. Another topic of discussion during the coming session will likely be the representation of the larger universities in the federal parliament.

The team that debates here against Cambridge on November 16th, will be picked from the best debaters at the Parliament, meetings of which will be held every two or three weeks. Premier Humphrey is therefore urging that more students turn out to speak at the Mock Parliament, as he claims that it is only by having as many as possible to choose from that a truly representative team can be picked. In his opinion, the Mock Parliament is, or should be the biggest thing connected with the University, and it is the duty of every student to take an interest in its proceedings. The debating team that goes to Great Britain next spring to meet Oxford and Cambridge is to be picked also from Mock Parliament speakers.

This year it will be necessary for any student to show his or her book of tickets in order to obtain admission to the meetings.

A. ADAMS CHAMPION OF R.V.C. TENNIS

Wins, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 From M. Bradley

The R.V.C. tennis championship is in possession of Miss Aldeth Adams as the result of her victory over Miss Marjorie Bradley on Saturday morning last. The final score totaling 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

The first set went very much in favour of Miss Bradley who easily won the first three games. The first was a love game and the second was noteworthy for its long rallies and effective serving on the part of Miss Bradley. The two games following, however resulted in points for her opponent the first demonstration in particular Miss Adams' overhanded drive with a strong cut and the second, her efficient serving. However, the victory swung over to the other side after Miss Bradley won three successive games raising her score 6-2. All the games of the set were steady but not startling with long rallies, steady playing and good placing evidenced throughout.

But a change in the state of affairs was destined to occur for the second set commencing with three successive games for the previous loser. Her steady play and long rallies were remarked and particular notice was taken of the strong backhand of Miss Adams. Good placing was effected in the two games following, which were won alternately by the two contestants. It seemed next that Miss Bradley might regain her hold when she won the three succeeding games thereby tying with her opponent, but the latter fought steadily to win the two points and the set.

Forsey Preaches To Congregation In Newfoundland

A letter had just been received by L. C. Tombs from Eugene Forsey, M. A., Arts '25, who recently arrived in England and is now in residence at Balliol College, Oxford. Mr. Forsey crossed the ocean on board the S.S. "Nova Scotia" with Hon. Walter Monroe, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, and a number of Newfoundland statesmen. Shortly before he sailed from St. John's he "preached" in a church at Grand Bank, Nfld., to a congregation of some 1,000 persons on "The Relationship between Christianity and Economics to-day". It is believed that this is one of the first occasions when a member of the Department of Economics and Political Science has addressed a church congregation.

NATURE OF REVUE TO BE DISCUSSED

Open Meeting in Union Ball Room

THEATRE NIGHT

Suggestions on Hand Include
Change of Revue to Complete Musical Comedy

Whether the McGill Red and White Revue should retain its present form, whether it should become a musical comedy written by students, or whether the actors and directors should devote their attentions to the production of some light opera, such as "Tom Jones" will be discussed at an open meeting of all those interested in the revue.

The meeting will be held at 5 this afternoon in the ball room of the Union, under the chairmanship of Errol C. Amaron, president of the Students' Society.

Work on the revue must commence immediately, in order that it may be successfully produced during the second week in March, but before the committees are appointed and the work begun, the Students' Executive Council desires to get some general opinion on what form the show should take.

It has been known for some time that opinion on this subject has varied very widely among the students, and this meeting is called expressly for the hearing of these opinions and suggestions.

It is understood that in addition to the three schemes at present proposed, others may be presented by any of the students present. Following this meeting the Council will convene next week for the purpose of deciding finally upon the plans and for the appointment of a committee to control the production.

It has not yet been decided exactly how many days the revue will run this year.

PROFESSOR BOGERT TO SPEAK

Professor Marston T. Bogert of Columbia University, New York, will address the Chemical Society at 4.45 this afternoon in the large theatre of the Chemical Building. He has selected as his subject, "Synthetic Organic Chemistry in the Study of Odorous Compounds."

Professor Bogert is a man of international reputation. He is professor of Organic Chemistry in Columbia University, a member of the National Research Council at Washington, and chairman of the committee of chemical research on medicinal compounds. His subject is said to be of very general interest, alike to the chemist as to the medical student. The meeting is open to the public, and the Chemical Society has extended an invitation to all interested to attend.

ANNUAL BOARD CONVENES TODAY

The Board of Editors of Old McGill 1925 will convene at five today, under the chairmanship of Paul Casey, Law, the recently appointed editor-in-chief. The business of the meeting is the appointment of various members of their respective positions and the outlining of the duties.

CHEMISTRY COMMITTEE

A regular meeting of the Chemistry and Mining Building Committee will be held this afternoon in the Macdonald-Chemistry Building.

McGILL OPENED RUGGER SEASON WITH VICTORY

Advanced One Step Toward McTier
Cup Saturday

DEFEATED M.A.A.A.

Final Score 5 to 3 — Seagar,
Scrum Half for Wheelers
was Outstanding Player

The McGill English rugger team took the first step toward being the challenger for the McTier cup when they beat the M. A. A. A. by 5 (1 goal) to 3 (one try) on Saturday afternoon at the M. A. A. A. grounds. The Match was hard fought from beginning to end and was every bit as close as the score suggests.

The M. A. A. A. were doing the greater part of the pressing particularly in the first half, but their failure to score until nearly the end of the game was due partly to the energetic defence and hard tackling of the McGill team, and also to the inability of their own three-quarter to carry through an attack. The McGill three-quarters, too, did not show such good combination as on last Saturday, but they amply made up for this by their good tackling. The M. A. A. A. forwards got the ball more frequently in the scrum, due to good hooking, but here again the McGill men after counter-attacked by their wheeling and quick breaking.

The individual player who was most in evidence was Seagar the scrum half for M. A. A. A. It seemed on occasions that the close proximity of half a dozen McGill men made not the slightest difference to him, either in his running with the ball or his kicking for touch. It was a very good run by this player which gave Marpole the chance to score his try. Marpole too did very good work for M. A. A. A. Of the McGill team, Noble was the most prominent—and made a wonderful run from near the halfway line to score a try between the goal posts. Meredith one of the M. A. A. A. forwards was badly hurt before half-time and it was thought that he had broken a rib, but in spite of this he showed extraordinary pluck, and played right through the game.

McGill kicked off, playing against the wind. The ball was kept in mid-field at the start and both teams took some time to get going. The M. A. A. A. three quarter made a run but it was stopped. Shortly after a free kick was given against McGill for off-side and Cohen made a splendid kick

HISTORICAL CLUB WILL MAKE TRIP

Members Invited to Home of

The first meeting of the historical Club this year, will be of a rather unusual kind. Following the example of the club two years ago, a trip will be made to a nearby place of historic interest.

The Rev. J. A. Mowatt, of St. Charles has invited the Club to his summer home on the Richelieu for the weekend beginning Oct. 22nd. Mr. Mowatt lives close to the scenes of the rebellion of 1837 and not only for this will the excursion be interesting, but also for the beauty of the place and the quaint old villages nearby. One paper at least will be read on the subject of the rebellion and trips will be made by motor, to places of interest in the neighbourhood. In case anyone can not leave on Friday it may be possible to go out on Saturday to join those who will go earlier. All members are requested to get in touch with any of the executive as soon as possible, as a number of arrangements must be ready.

New members of the club especially are urged to be there in order to meet the older members.

At the last meeting of the Club the following men were elected: B. Alexander, L. M. Bloomfield, A. W. Ross, R. Caron, E. B. Copland, E. S. Fry, H. C. Goldberger, A. Kirschberg, H. Lande, J. P. Manion, A. T. McKee, D. Dewolf MacKay, D. C. Munroe, J. R. Paterson, H. C. Reid, and C. H. Peters.

DR. LEACOCK WILL SPEAK TO WOMEN

Meeting of Delta Sigma Society Thursday

Dr. Leacock is to be the speaker at a meeting of the Delta Sigma Society, to be held in the R.V.C. common room on Thursday, October 21st, at four o'clock.

The Society considers itself very fortunate in having secured Dr. Leacock as its speaker. "He needs no introduction to McGill Students," a member of the executive stated last night. "His achievements in literature are familiar to all. Some are privileged to know him as a professor and assuredly they will need no urging to attend this meeting. Those who know him only through his books will now have the opportunity of hearing him personally."

This first meeting of the Delta Sigma Society is the second of a series held by the various McGill women students' Societies during this session. Several of the old activities of the "Delta Sig" will be carried out during the course of the year. It is also hoped that new and interesting attempts will be made.

All McGill women students are urged to attend this meeting of their own society. Especial welcome is extended to freshmen in all faculties and any other entering McGill for the first time.

At the close of the meeting tea will be served.

RED AND WHITE CREW WINNERS IN FIRST RACE

Defeat Varsity In Initial Canadian Intercollegiate Fixture

SENIOR EIGHTS

Choppy Waters and Stiff Breeze Made Hard Going
at Lachine Course

The red and white colors of McGill flashed across the finishing line a length and a half ahead of the "Varsity" eight to win the first intercollegiate boat race ever staged on Canadian waters when the eight-oared shells of the two colleges competed over the Lachine course on Saturday. A strong southwest wind blowing diagonally across the course made weather conditions far from ideal and coupled with the bitter cold made things disagreeable for both spectators and crews. The wind served to make the water rough and choppy and resulted in a foul after the crews had rowed nearly half way.

McGill had the windward course and the stiff breeze brought them over on the Toronto line with the result that both crews fouled. The race was then re-started and McGill taking an early lead gradually increased this to win by a length and a half.

McGill were rowing about 35 strokes to the minute with Varsity keeping practically the same stroke near the finish, both shells pitched a good deal and took water, especially when the crews reached the open course in front of the clubhouse. No official time was taken but oarsmen were of the opinion that for three-quarters of a mile the race was slower than usual. Varsity outweighed the McGill crew by a good deal but the short distance of the race rather handicapped them in bringing their weight into effect.

Coach Molmans was highly enthusiastic over the result of the race as were officials of the McGill Rowing Club. The latter, however, expressed regret at the number of rumors going about on the subject of the postponement of the race, which for various reasons was postponed twice. There is absolutely no truth in the statement that postponements of the race can be blamed on Varsity, they declared, and they highly discredited also the report that McGill won the race the first time on a foul. In the connection, the following statement has been given to the McGill Daily by Major D. Stuart Forbes, athletics director at McGill.

"A statement appeared in the press Saturday to the effect that McGill

PAPERS REPRESENT LEVEL OF THOUGHT

on "Journalism"

"I read the sporting news as a form of amusement when I am tired. It is a weakness but it is significant," said Dr. Kirsopp Lake in his sermon entitled "Journalism" which he delivered in the Church of the Messiah yesterday morning. This was the second in the series entitled "Some mortal issues in modern life," which includes Education, Legislation and Criminals.

Dr. Lake said that people do not believe what the Church has to say on modern things especially journalism. The things which journalism can or cannot do affect the Church immensely. It is not easy to define the status of the modern newspaper but the point is that it does show and represent the low level of the thought of today. Modern society insists on having the newspaper in its present form and it is useless to blame journalism for not bringing out a paper to please all, for then it would be able to work miracles. Although not a journalist he could claim to have been an editor of something or the other for the last twenty years, and during his time in England he was well known in the offices in Fleet Street.

There is a very important man in journalism. He is the man at the bottom of the ladder. Most people are afraid of the reporter because they think that he is out for something sensational, something spicy, some scandalous write-up. They, the reporters, are men with an acute sense of respect. Their honor is only to in-

THE MOCK PARLIAMENT.

Tonight one of the major literary activities of the university will make its bow when the Mock Parliament meets in the Union Ball room at 8.30. Though opening a little earlier this year than in previous years, the leaders have had ample time to prepare their material and to perfect the necessary arrangements to make the Mock a success.

Always a popular institution, the miniature legislature is assuming this year a much more important position than it has ever held before. From the debaters in the Mock will be chosen those who are to meet the Cambridge team, and those who will represent McGill on the English tour next summer. The leaders of the Literary and Debating Society have very laudably decided that McGill will debate no more composite teams from the Old Country until we have reciprocated by sending a McGill team to the Motherland. The new plan of choosing the debaters from the showing that they make at the Mock is likely to prove much more satisfactory than the former method of trial debates and eliminations. No man can do his best speaking in an empty room before several judges, and on a subject in which he has absolutely no interest. The informal give and take of the Mock shows up a man's real debating skill, and affords a much more accurate means of showing how he will act before a crowd.

Unfortunately there seems to be a certain misapprehension current regarding the function of the Mock Parliament. Many apparently think that the Mock is a more or less formal affair where certain men, largely chosen beforehand, get up and speak on the matter under debate, and that the function of the undergraduate audience is to be entertained first and to act as judges afterward. Nothing is farther from the real purpose of the Mock Parliament and nothing can more certainly insure its failure than this attitude.

There is no other means available at the University whereby a man can learn the art of giving spontaneous expression of his opinion in public. The Parliament is the scene of much fiery talk and partisan oratory and all the members of both sides are given a chance to express their views in public. In this the Mock Parliament differs greatly from other debating organizations where only two or three men on a side are allowed to express their opinions on a subject carefully prepared before hand.

The fact that a certain group has taken a prominent part in the organization of the Parliament and in choosing the subject should not prevent anyone who has something to say from speaking. Every member of the undergraduate body is a member of Parliament and as such is entitled to the expression of his opinions. The choice of party is left open to everyone, but the fact that he does not agree with the policies put forward by either is no reason why he should not support one or the other.

THE RED AND WHITE REVUE.

One of the most important affairs of the college year is the Red and White Revue which takes place the second week in March. That appears a long way off yet but such an important undertaking requires a great deal of preparation and it is essential that plans for the function be gotten under way with as little delay as possible. It is for that reason that the Student's Council is calling an open meeting in the ballroom this afternoon at five to discuss ways and means of improving the Revue.

It is a well known fact that there is considerable difference of opinion among the students as to the form that Theatre Night should take. Some there are who look with longing on the good old days of five years ago when theatre night was a drunken orgy that lasted till past one in the morning, and which gave the audience an impression of students and student life which was far from desirable. However a return to this plan is quite out of the question and it is improbable that it will even be suggested today. Others there are who have a much more ambitious plan mapped out and would have us produce some well known musical comedy such as Tom Jones or The Mikado. Many objections to this plan also present themselves. First and foremost is the objection that it is for the student's viewpoint and the student art and humour exhibited that the Revue is patronized. The Montreal public has a choice of any number of Professional performances that, in point of acting, are much superior to anything that we can put on, but only once a year has the Montreal Public an opportunity of living over again its own student days in the Red and White Revue. To produce a professional play bodily leaves no scope for originality.

It would seem then that the discussion will center around the advisability of retaining the plan of last year in which the Revue consisted of a number of independent skits, somewhat after the nature of a vaudeville program, or of having a thin thread of plot connecting all the acts as in the best professional Revues. The latter plan would still give a wide scope of subject material to amateur writers but would make the performance much more smooth running and more finished in style. It could be so written as to give suitable parts to various campus characters for whose type of talent there would probably be no demand in a professional show. Nor need it be a one man production. The best revues consist of a number of acts which while related to the main theme, do little or nothing towards the carrying out of the plot. If the would be writer knows the theme of the Revue it is a comparatively simple matter to write a skit to fit into it.

Between The Book Ends

The Daily's Book Review Column makes its first appearance with this issue; hereinafter it will be a regular Monday morning feature.

Stephen Leacock Speaks Again

WINNOWNED WISDOM, by Stephen Leacock. Toronto, The MacMillan Company of Canada, $1.75.

Stephen Leacock has written a new book. Or rather, he has collected much of the stuff that has previously been published in the Montreal Standard, the Cosmopolitan Magazine and elsewhere, and placed it between two board covers.

Always excepting his Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town, which will probably for all time remain prime favorite among the author's works, this latest effort ranks higher, both as regards the quality of its humor and the down-to-earth common sense with which it abounds, than any which has preceded it.

What Stephen Leacock has to say, is ordinarily regarded by the average man in the street as said merely to provoke mirth, but this same average man cannot fail to appreciate in these latest stories the author's careful explosion of current fallacies, his brilliant ridicule of the lesser of our passing fads.

To say that there is not a dull moment in the book would be untrue. There are parts which would have improved the little volume had they been omitted, but happily these parts are few, and the rest of the book is refreshingly compensating for these lapses.

If any have thought that that charm of manner and facility of pen which have elevated Leacock to his present plane, have declined with time, let them read Winnowed Wisdom, his latest work. In it there is much to laugh at, much to contemplate on, and little—indeed, very little, to criticize adversely. — H.

terest the public on all occasions. Treat them fairly and they will treat you fairly. Make known the fact that you want in print. Put all your cards on the table and explain reasonably why some things need not be printed. These men are ambitious, they are out for the news. It is the essential of the paper to tell people what has happened.

The origin of the modern newspaper can be traced to the events of about two hundred years ago. There are two things from which it can claim its ancestry. The first is the news-letter which was circulated from hand to hand by business people for business information. The originator is said to be a Viennese merchant who informed the cities of Europe on the conditions of the market. This is no doubt the direct ancestor of the modern ticker. The desire to have news quickly produced the news-letter. The other origin is the pamphlet. This was published to influence public opinion. With the news-letter the receiver paid for it; with the pamphlet the issuer was willing to pay for it. Firstly by paying a man to write it and then the agents to circulate it. People pay more attention to a thing that is sold rather than given and so it has always been found profitable to make one charge for these pamphlets. By these assets the general public became able to read, and to read not merely for an intellectual activity but for amusement. People are always willing to pay more for amusement than anything else, so to supply amusement is to make a profit. This is what the newspaper does nowadays.

There are three things which are essential in the publishing of a newspaper namely: Information which the public want, information which others want them to know, and amusement. News and advertisements are primarily needed for no newspaper can exist without them. The first necessity is to make it pay, as there is no possibility of having a newspaper issued solely to assist and edify the public. The proprietors have in their hand two motives, firstly to make a profitable undertaking, secondly the desire to influence the public for its own good. Some papers certainly cannot be said to be the latter. News has to be what the public is willing to buy. There was a paper in England which tried to exclude all sporting items and in consequence it went out of existence altogether. If there are stones to throw they should not be directed at the newspaper man but at the public, so in reality the problem comes back to origin. It is not practical to say politics to say that journalism must be changed. The real thing to be done is to raise public opinion to a far higher tone, so that men will want better journalism. Some news is pernicious. Sporting news is amusing and interesting when one is tired, but it is not for any one person or group

And Now They're After The Co-ed

CO-ED, by Olive Deane Hormel, New York, Scribners, $2.00.

Since Percy Marks wrote his sensational disclosures on how students spend four or more years of their time at the University, the market has been flooded by books on the subject, all purporting to draw an equally clever picture of college life. Incomplete as it was, The Plastic Age was a revelation compared to the off-springs it has fathered.

As might be imagined, Co-ed is a story of how one Lucia Leigh went to college, was moulded, got a degree and came home with her mind made up. The college in this particular case is a middle-west institution devoted to the study of agriculture.

The opening book is called "Preliminary" and the description of how Lucia's thirst for higher education was whetted might well have been omitted and the book been better for it. The second book is entitled "Enchantment" and, as might easily be expected, the following one is "Disillusionment." "Readjustment" occurs in the fourth book, closely followed by "Romance," a bit late, admittedly, but nevertheless, romance of a sort. The closing chapters are called "Realization," and end in graduation and marriage significantly enough.

Had some attempt at humor been introduced into any of these six sections, the thing might have sustained interest, despite the fact that it is poorly written, the style being very amateurish and heavy.

Only once does Co-ed threaten to become interesting. In the book called "Disillusionment," there is a biological catastrophe, but it does not happen to Lucia Leigh, and anyway, the man in the case does the noble thing. — M.

or persons to say that the readers shall not have the prize fights, the baseball games, the murders and the divorce cases. Churches have done so and have done more harm than good. St. Paul was always against those who emphasized, "Thou shalt not." If people wanted salvation, or to use a term that would express it in modern language—progress, they should not point out others' errors but rather be silent or perhaps to show the wickedness of being wicked is in no way to be compassed with the goodness in being good.

The Protestants had lost ground in the last century because they had lost sight in the outlook of St. Paul on this particular subject. The Roman Church had in the Middle Ages pointed out the real value of contemporary life, its beauty and sacredness in which people lived, and thus the whole life was consecrated in the living. There was the demarkation. The world was waiting for someone to point out the romance and sacredness of business in modern day life. How a few men who achieve riches can learn to make the world and life better for the other people. The people were looking to the church for this thing which would make for purification. Dr. Lake based his closing remarks on the sentence "Success in life depends on what you do in your spare time."

falling to make yards kicked for their first point. Play, however went back into their territory with Jack Little continually out-kicking Peters, Jack ended the scoring for the first half by kicking another rouge. Half time score: McGill 14, Tigers' 1.

For the next ten minutes or so very little happened. Once the ball took a queer bound in the wind and rolled around the ground like a man in a fit. It was a McGill kick and when it finally ceased its convulsions, the ball was back where it had been kicked from. Tiger, profiting by this, kicked for their second point. Peters, who was getting worse and worse protection as the game proceeded was losing in his kicking and finally had one of his punts blocked. The ball was dribbled to Tigers' 25 yard line and after Peters had run the ball out twice, averting what looked like sure rouges, Lalshley fooled him on the next one and kicked a field goal that he couldn't run out and McGill had 17 points in their column. Tigers' went from bad to worse after that and on one of Little's kicks, Crawford fumbled and Ney Gordon dived on the ball for a touch. It was not converted and as they say in downtown papers, the game ended without further scoring. McGill 22, Tigers' 2.

Looking Backward

Thirteen years ago today, Oct. 18, 1913, McGill beat Varsity 21 to 5 for the third consecutive time in two seasons. The game was very uninteresting, the field being too sloppy for fast playing.

The second Union Smoker of the season was an enormous success, the only fly in the ointment being that though the smoker was for the Toronto team very few came to it.

Three Sophomores, after the Science Smoker, kidnapped a freshman, but their actions while waiting for the victim appeared so suspicious that they were followed by a plainclothes detective who placed them under arrest.

TORONTO SENT QUEEN'S DOWN FOR BAD LOSS

Defeated Tri-color in Senior
Rugby on Saturday

SCORE 11 TO 5

Blue and White Outplayed
Kingston in Three Periods of Play

Varsity Stadium, Toronto, Oct. 16.—Queen's rugby team suffered their first loss in an intercollegiate game since 1922 when they were defeated here this afternoon by Ronnie McPherson's blue and white squad by an 11 to 5 score. By the Varsity victory, the McGill team goes into first place in the league following their defeat of the Toronto team in Montreal last Saturday.

Queen's did not look like the team that won four consecutive championships and after the first quarter were outplayed by Varsity in practically every department of the game. They got all their points in the first quarter when with the wind behind them Batstone kicked a field goal and two rouges.

From then on they faded out of the picture and Varsity gradually overhauled their lead to win out by a good margin. Toronto scored one point in the first quarter on a rouge from Snyder's boot, the ball rolling to the dead line. Changing ends at the beginning of the second, with four points down, Varsity staged a determined attack and favored with the wind edged closer and closer to the tri-color goal. Trimble returned a kick and Chantler made the mistake of touching it and not picking it up with Varsity getting possession five yards out. Stollery went over for a touch was knocked out on the play, only to be revived and continue in the game. Snyder was inches out in the convert. Varsity plunged through the Queen's line for more yards and before the half time Trimble kicked to the dead line for another point. Varsity 7 Queen's 5.

Varsity had Queen's completely on the run in the third quarter. They made yards repeatedly and though Queen's had the advantage of the wind, Snyder and Trimble were holding their own in the kicking. Batstone kicked short into touch and after two attempts by Varsity to go over and failed, Snyder kicked a perfect field goal to put the score up to 10 to 5, as the third quarter ended.

Queen's made a determined stand in the last quarter but a long bounding kick of Trimble's and a penalty lost them their chances. Line plunges brought the ball to centre field and Batstone was just able to run out a long kick of Trimble's. However, he was finally caught behind his line for a rouge shortly before the game ended with Varsity 11, Queen's 5.

BISHOP'S GAVE BAD BEATING TO U. OF M.

Lennoxville Piled up 35 to 1
Score

Lennoxville, Oct. 16.—After three successive defeats in the Intermediate Intercollegiate series, Bishop's University soundly trounced University of Montreal here today, 35 to 1.

Mutually ragged rugby marked the first period: Klein failing to score when on the very edge of the visitors' line. No sooner had the second quarter begun, however, than Klein went through for a touch, converted, which was the beginning of an offensive which Bishop's maintained valiantly till the final whistle. Jack Johnston made a magnificent 35-yard run and scored the college's second tally, which Klein converted. The start centre back added another six points before half-time, a rouge bringing the score to 19 to 0, with prospects good for a whitewashing.

The visitors made their only point in the third period, a rouge going to their credit. Klein, whose game was spectacular throughout the afternoon, added two more touches, both of which he converted, and Charlie White contributed yet another, through the convert failed. Bishop's had two of its graduates on the visitors' line, both Almond and Abinovitch owning Lennoxville as their Alma Mater. They, with Lafrance, Laverdure and Brennan, starred for Montreal.

Bishop's play University of Montreal in Montreal on Wednesday and McGill play here next Saturday, when Coach Herb Murphy intends to provide his guests with one big surprise.

TORONTO FORCED MCGILL TO DRAW IN SOCCER GAME

Neither Team Tallied — Mc-
Gill Lost Opportunities

LACKED FINAL PUNCH

Red and White Squad invade United States Next Tuesday

In a very fast and exciting soccer game played at the Stadium Saturday McGill and Varsity battled to a scoreless draw.

On the run of play McGill had the better part of the game and it was their poor finishing in front of goal which lost them one point.

Toronto played an aggressive kick and rush game in contrast to the combination played by McGill. The Varsity team were well served by King at centre-half Cox, Hadley and Bailey. For McGill Maule was outstanding and Amaron distinguished himself by saving very difficult shots.

McGill won the toss and took advantage of a strong breeze from the start the Red and White attacked but the defence of Varsity warded off many dangerous movements McGill failed in front of goal by hesitating too long and consequently the timely interception of Toronto's halves and backs saved their goalkeeper repeatedly.

The wind was not conducive to good football and many well meant passes went astray. Toronto made an occasional breakthrough in this period but Amaron and the defense were safe for McGill.

In the second half McGill faced the stiff breeze but in spite of this, with clever control of the ball held the advantage in play. King was the tower of strength to Toronto, for he repeatedly intercepted the work of the McGill front rank. Cox in goal for Varsity was in form this period and made several fine saves.

Play opened with Varsity attacking but McGill defence repelled and started the front rank in attack. The halves of McGill were feeding the forwards excellently but feeble shooting by the three inside men wasted many fine raids.

Bailey was effective on the left for Toronto but his parting crosses were taken care of by the play of Giovando or Maule. Maule and Estall gave the Varsity right wing little chance.

Amaron next made an excellent save of Withers high shot. The goalie tipped the ball over the bar for a corner which was fruitless.

McGill fought doggedly toward the finish and Scott missed an open opportunity when he sent the leather sailing high over the bar.

Moffatt led his team on the attack, repeatedly and on one occasion Watt grazed the crossbar with a rocket shot.

Final score 0-0.

POLOISTS TO PLAY IN LEAGUE GAMES

Speedsters are Shaping up
Well at Practices

(By the Natatory Nymph)

In this the year of enthusiasm to which all groups and activities must contribute, the team which was one of the trio to bring home the bacon last year is steadily continuing along the desired lines. The workout of polo and swimming teams is in itself an example of enthusiasm. Before the season had started or even the boys knew that the rest of the team were in town, Coach Ed. Vernet found himself surrounded in the Itapemstein Baths one evening with all the members of the senior polo team together with some of the juniors and all except two of the graduates for the last two years. And yet there are some who still doubt mental telepathy.

Practices have continued for the last week at the Knights of Columbus Tank for the benefit of the ones who are aspiring to greater deeds this year. Friday last saw the thrashing of legs and the whirl of arms as the speedsters shot through the water in their eager efforts to clip off the seconds in the 50 yards. Already there are about a dozen eager to make a place in the record holding relay team. It can be prophesied that only those who can 25 and some fifths in the distance will ultimately gain the coveted honor for Clayton Bourne and Vic Clarholm can be relied upon to keep up their previous form. Mort Gibbons is taking every ounce of spring out of the springboard and this human swallow should have the distinction of being placed with the three marlets in the McGill crest. The plunging parson graduated last spring and although the team must have and does have a parson on it he is not of the plunging type. Goddard is filling up in that capacity and his name should surely be "the plunging plumber". If more alliterations are needed it could be said that Legge, a recent acquisition from the States, is a "backstroke butcher" for he promises well to relieve the coach of that hole, which was in the team last year. Brabander is performing those graceful movements which are necessary in the breaststroke and he and Marcou are about equally matched in that direction.

The poloists have had to get right down to business because their schedule begins this week with a double header against the C.P.R.A.A. on Thursday night when both Intermediate and Juniors will battle in the Loyola College scored a double victory over the McGill at the west end football field before nearly three thousand people Saturday afternoon taking the Junior game 2 to 1 and the Intermediate fixture 15 to 3. The games marked the opening of Loyola's new football stands and the wns went a long way to make the event a complete success.

The Junior game was the more closely matched of the two but the Intermediate exhibition proved much better football although the score was somewhat one-sided.

The Junior battle started before two o'clock so as to allow time for the important Intermediate tussle which immediately followed it. It was largely a kicking duel and neither team ap-

DARTMOUTH WAS HUMBLING BY ELI

Yale Inflicted First Defeat in 3 Years

New York, October 17.—Ancient rivalries, rich in tradition, and inter-sectional strife spiced with the lure of North plied against South. East against West, have contributed their early color to the gridiron campaign of 1926.

As a result today high above all else in the eastern football realm stand the Bulldogs of Eli Yale, a band of giant killers, whose tenacity and courage sent the Dartmouth Indians back to a wigwam in the Hanover hills, defeated for the first time in almost three years. In achieving the 14 to 7 victory, the Elfs came from behind and turned the tide with a volley of passes that swept Dartmouth into confusion. And a new hero, "Doc" McGonigle, stepped out and in the fourth quarter clinched the overthrow of Green aerial supremacy, first with the interception of a pass and later with the toss that brought victory.

The Princeton Tigers, faltering for the past two weeks, but still edging out a victory and a tie, met a powerful Navy crew with a deceptive running attack. The gaps that yawned in the Tiger forward wall for the drive of a low-charging middle line, let plunging backs through for a 27 to 13 win.

Vieng in color, with the Yale spectacle was the vicious onslaught of a great Pennsylvania cleaver that crushed a menace from the west, Chicago, in the outstanding intersectional warfare of the day. It was a 27-0 rout.

Virginians from William and Mary were smothered 27 to 7 under the first winning Harvard surge of the season.

POLOISTS TO PLAY IN LEAGUE GAMES

City League. The City League has learnt something from intercollegiate polo for after a successful spring season they are introducing the system of subs into the more important fall season. These subs can only be used at the end of each quarter, and are limited to two in number.

MacLaren of last year's Senior team is still in hospital with an eye that has been operated on, but this was not due to any polo misadventure. Jardine will be ineligible for intercollegiate and so giving his position over to a worthy successor in Goddard, Clarholm, Ollibone and Mathams of last year's team are available and the Juniors of yore are no more because they seem to have developed into the man killing species. It is well known that some have been in the great open spaces north of Quebec and also playing round the Gatineau.

Couch Vernot has been putting the boys through their paces and the goals are always on hand to manhandle them. It will be an interesting thing this year to witness the Grads wondering whether to lower McGill's colors or give their Alma Mater the honor of winning the league for he Grads have the biggest aggregate of stars in the City League. Polo practices are held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5.30 p.m.

peared to know a great deal about the finer points of the game. For McGill Swabey and Thomas were probably best but there was no outstanding star. For Loyola two of their halves, Quinn Shaughnessy and Slattery played well getting away for several pretty end runs.

McGill was outplayed in nearly every department of the game during the first half but showed some improvement as the game progressed. In the second half their line plunging was better and the line held well while the tackling was also improved. Loyola however still had the edge in the kicking and were also getting away for end runs.

Swabey kicked off for McGill, his punt being low and bounding and on the next play Thomas kicked for a rouge for McGill's first and only point. There was no more scoring during this quarter. Loyola opened the second period with a strong offensive. Slattery ran back a Red and White punt for nearly 25 yards dodging a number of tacklers. Then Loyola made yards twice and tried a drop but failed. Pickering kicked a rouge to tie the score.

McGill fumbled at the opening of the third quarter and Loyola took the ball. Shaughnessy made two fine end runs and Loyola kicked a rouge to take the lead. The period ended without further scoring. The last period opened with a Loyola fumble. The Red and White kicked on the first down. The Loyola half received but lost the ball when tackled and McGill was in possession on Loyola's fifteen. Loyola blocked a McGill kick but the Red and White recovered on the 25 yard line. McGill had lost their chance and never again threatened, the game ending with McGill on their own 47-yard line.

Intermediate Game

In the senior event Loyola had the edge throughout and McGill didn't have a chance. The Red and White failed to take advantage of the breaks and seemed to be distinctly off color from the very start. Loyola got nearly twice the distance that McGill was getting on their punts while their tackling was second to none. They plunged through the line again and again to make yards but McGill was also good in this department. The Loyola backs combined for some nice broken field running and passing and in this manner made most of their gains.

Captain 'Moose' Bannon, Smith and Cannon were outstanding for Loyola. For McGill Dalton, Couch and Altman were the leading lights. Couch proved to be the 'Curley' Taylor of the second team and his tackling was as good as that of anybody on the field. Twice he blocked Loyola kicks to put McGill in a good position to score but they failed to take advantage of his efforts.

In the first quarter Loyola had a distinct edge and soon after the kick-off blocked a McGill kick to get the ball on McGill's 20 yard line. Savard then booted for a rouge. Shortly afterward Savard hoisted another long spiral and Cannon raced down the field to gather it in and go over for a touchdown which was not converted. Dalton went over for a safety touch to give McGill two points. Bannon made another beautiful broken field run for 45 yards but his pass was intercepted and Loyola lost possession.

The second quarter opened with a steady advance up the field on the part of McGill. They made yards again and were fortunate enough to recover their own kicks due to fumbles on the part of Loyola and good running on the part of the McGill halves. Eventually they reached Loyola's one yard line but three backs only advanced the ball two feet and Loyola kicked out of danger. Play saw-sawed around centre field for the rest of the period.

A series of fumbles at the opening of the third quarter and the smashing force of Loyola's line soon put the west enders in a position to try a drop but it failed and they lost the ball and then on the very next play were penalized twenty-five yards for holding off-side. Dalton and Altman were doing some nice kicking for McGill but Bannon got the ball on a fumble and ran it up the field to put Loyola in a good position for a rouge.

The last period was a walk over for Loyola. Smith started the fire-works by dashing right through the McGill line to run 45 yards for a touch. It was not converted Savard's drop failed but Loyola recovered and kicked for a rouge. Play went from one end of the field to the other, McGill first scoring a rouge and then Loyola added two points in quick succession by kicking to the deadline and for a rouge.

which found touch 5 yds from the McGill line. From the line out the M. A. A. three-quarters got the ball, but their attack failed and the McGill forwards took the ball back to the M. A. A. half. It was then that McGill got the ball from a scrum and Noble made a fine run around the end of the opposing three-quarter line past Cohen the full back, and scored a try right between the posts, giving Graeme an easy kick to convert.

Score—McGill 5 M. A. A. 0
After the try the M. A. A. soon started to press hard, and until half-time they were nearly continuously in the McGill half. McGill, however, put up a truly splendid defence, which saved their score from being equalled. Shortly after the kick-off, the M. A. A. three-quarter got away and Marpole made a nice run, but he was stopped by a good tackle by Graeme. This was followed by a successful attack by M. A. A. A. but they were all in vain and the whistle blew for the interval with no further score.

The second half started with an interchange of kicks which ended in Marpole gaining ground for M. A. A. A. by finding touch. Graeme then made a nice run, but M. A. A. A. three-quarters soon got the ball back and Alden looked like getting away for a try, when Angevine stopped him with a nice tackle. M. A. A. A. after this made a very determined attempt to score and were within the McGill twenty-five for some time, but they couldn't manage to cross the line. The situation was relieved by the McGill three-quarters making a run. Senger made a mark, and found touch with his kick, thus bringing M. A. A. A. back again. They made another very hard attempt to score but it was also unsuccessful. A penalty was given against M. A. A. A. and in trying to catch the kick, Cohen knocked the ball into touch, which brought McGill into the M. A. A. half. However they did not stay there long and several good runs were made by the M. A. A. A. three-quarters. Seargar then got the ball and after a very nice run gave a good pass to Marpole who scored right in the corner. Senger took the kick but it was at a very difficult angle, with the wind against him and he failed to convert.

Score—McGill 5—M. A. A. 3

had won the inter-university boat race against University of Toronto by a foul and that the race had been voluntarily rowed over. This is entirely incorrect. The boats fouled one another owing to the very strong fluky cross wind; no blame was imputed to either. They were quite correctly stopped, returned to the start, and started again.

"It was perhaps unfortunate that the race was delayed until so late in the season but this arose from some quite minor misunderstanding. It is hoped that the race, for the institution of which the principal credit is due to Professor London of the Toronto Club, will now be an annual fixture."

The crews: McGill—cox, U. Molmann; stroke, A. K. Glassford; no. 7 W. McConnell; no. 6, M. MacNaughton; no. 5, Jack Little; no. 4, S. Maxwell; no. 3, G. Davidson; no. 2, D. Logan; bow, W. Thompson.

finished 6-4, in her favour. All the games of the second set were, as the previous, characterized by extreme steadiness and coolness on the part of both players, only suspense being caused by balls just dropped over the net and good placing.

The third and deciding set found Miss Adams winning the first two games. These as the others, featured long rallies but the steady improvement of Miss Adams' placing and slamming easily won for her the first two games. Her opponent, however, won the third game but her scoring terminated at that point as the last four games were to the credit of Miss Adams. Long rallies were observed in all and chiefly towards the end with both players demonstrating good form and continued calmness. It was doubtless the remarkable steadiness and determination of the winner contrasted with the more easy and natural style of Miss Bradley which finally won for her the match.

With both single and doubles tournaments already completed preparations are now being made for the inter-year matches.

Score—McGill 5 M. A. A. A. 0
After the try the M. A. A. A. soon started to press hard, and until half-time they were nearly continuously in the McGill half. McGill, however, put up a truly splendid defence, which saved their score from being equalled. Shortly after the kick-off, the M. A. A. A. three-quarter got away and Marpole made a nice run, but he was stopped by a good tackle by Graeme. This was followed by a successful attack by M. A. A. A. but they were all in vain and the whistle blew for the interval with no further score.

The second half started with an interchange of kicks which ended in Marpole gaining ground for M. A. A. A. by finding touch. Graeme then made a nice run, but M. A. A. A. three-quarters soon got the ball back and Alden looked like getting away for a try, when Angevine stopped him with a nice tackle. M. A. A. A. after this made a very determined attempt to score and were within the McGill twenty-five for some time, but they couldn't manage to cross the line. The situation was relieved by the McGill three-quarters making a run. Seager made a mark, and found touch with his kick, thus bringing M. A. A. A. back again. They made another very hard attempt to score but it was also unsuccessful. A penalty was given against M. A. A. A. and in trying to catch the kick, Cohen knocked the ball into touch, which brought McGill into the M. A. A. A. half. However they did not stay there long and several good runs were made by the M. A. A. A. three-quarters. Seager then got the ball and after a very nice run gave a good pass to Marpole who scored right in the corner. Seager took the kick but it was at a very difficult angle, with the wind against him and he failed to convert.

RED AND WHITE CREW WINNERS IN RACE

had won the inter-university boat race against University of Toronto by a foul and that the race had been unfairly rowed over. This is entirely incorrect. The boats fouled one another owing to the very strong fluky cross wind; no blame was imputed to either. They were quite correctly stopped, returned to the start, and started again.

"It was perhaps unfortunate that the race was delayed until so late in the season but this arose from some quite minor misunderstanding. It is hoped that the race, for the institution of which the principal credit is due to Professor London of the Toronto Club, will now be an annual fixture."

The crews: McGill—cox, U. Molmann; stroke, A. K. Gussford; no. 7, W. McConnell; no. 6, M. MacNaughton; no. 5, Jack Little; no. 4, S. Maxwell; no. 3, G. Davidson; no. 2, D. Logan; bow, W. Thompson.

Varsity—cox, Hoare, stroke, Bruce; no. 7, Dale; no. 6, Laird; no. 5, Nicholson; no. 4, Keith; no. 3, Holderson; no. 2, McGillbray, bow, Thompson.

Starter, Len Johnson. Referee, W. Owen.

finished 6-4, in her favour. All the games of the second set were, as the previous, characterized by extreme steadiness and coolness on the part of both players, only suspense being caused by balls just dropped over the net and good placing.

The third and deciding set found Miss Adams winning the first two games. These as the others, featured long rallies but the steady improvement of Miss Adams' placing and slamming easily won for her the first two games. Her opponent, however, won the third game but her scoring terminated at that point as the last four games were to the credit of Miss Adams. Long rallies were observed in all and chiefly towards the end with both players demonstrating good form and continued calmness. It was doubtless the remarkable steadiness and determination of the winner contrasted with the more easy and natural style of Miss Bradley which finally won for her the match.

With both single and doubles tournaments already completed preparations are now being made for the inter-year matches.
